This page details upcoming changes to Fulfillment by Amazon (FBA) fulfillment fees.

> Important:
> Starting April 17, 2026, a 3.5% fuel and logistics-related surcharge will be applied to fulfillment fees across Fulfillment by Amazon (FBA) in the US and Canada as well as to Remote Fulfillment with FBA from the US into Canada, Mexico, and Brazil. Starting May 2, 2026, this surcharge will take effect for Buy with Prime in the US and Multi-Channel Fulfillment (MCF) in the US and Canada.
> Additionally, holiday peak fulfillment fees will apply from October 15, 2026 to January 14, 2027 for FBA, Remote Fulfillment with FBA into Canada and Mexico, Multi-Channel Fulfillment (MCF), and Buy with Prime. On average, the rate cards for holiday peak fulfillment fees will have the same per unit increase over non-peak rates as last year. The fuel and logistics-related surcharge will apply to these fees.
> The Revenue Calculator, Profit Analytics dashboard, and Fee and Economics Preview reports have all been updated to reflect the peak rates and surcharge and are available to help you understand the specific impact to your business.

Effective January 15, 2026, fulfillment fees will revert to non-peak fee rates, which will see the following changes:

- Standard-size products priced between $10-$50 will see fulfillment fees increase by $0.08 per unit on average. Small standard-size product fulfillment fees in this price range will increase by $0.25 per unit and Large standard-size product fees will increase by $0.05 per unit, on average.
- Standard-size products priced below $10 will see fulfillment fees increase by $0.05 per unit on average. Small standard-size product fulfillment fees in this price range will increase by $0.12 per unit on average and Large standard-size product fees will remain unchanged as we continue to invest in growing this selection priced below $10. This means that these products priced below $10 will now receive an effective fee discount of $0.86 per unit on average (up from $0.77 previously) compared to standard-size products priced $10 or higher.
- Standard-size products priced above $50 will see fulfillment fees increase by $0.31 per unit on average. These products require a higher level of service including extra handling, more features, and faster processing. We'll also continue to improve the FBA service for higher-priced products, including improvements to your returns experience, reduced defects that cause missing and damaged inventory, and faster processing of removals. Some of these updates have already started rolling out and more will be available in the coming months.

Fee calculations for Large standard, Small Bulky, Large Bulky, and Extra-Large units will be based on the greater of unit weight or dimensional weight (details on how to calculate can be found on dimensional weight), with the exception of small standard and extra-large 150+ lb items, which will use unit weight only. For detailed size tiers, go to Product size tiers.

Additional fee resources

Overmax handling fee - Starting January 15, 2026, we'll implement Overmax surcharges on Extra-Large products (up to 150 lb) that exceed 96 inches in their longest side or 130 inches in length plus girth. For details on rate card, go to Overmax handling fee.

Ships in Product Packaging - Ships in Product Packaging (SIPP) is a program in which products are shipped to the customer in their original packaging, without any additional packaging from us. Standard size products certified as SIPP will automatically receive lowered FBA fulfillment fees on each certified unit shipped. Small and Bulky products that are non-certified as SIPP will see additional fees. For details on rate card, go to Ships in Product Packaging (SIPP). For details on SIPP guidelines and how to enroll, go to SIPP enrollment guidelines.

Low-inventory-level fee – For standard-sized and bulky products, when inventory falls below 28 days of supply relative to customer demand, we charge a 'Low inventory Level Fee' to shipped units, aiming to optimize delivery speeds and shipping costs across our distribution network. For more details, go to Low-inventory-level fee.

Low Price fulfillment fee - Products priced under $10 will automatically receive Low-Price FBA rates that are $0.86 less than standard FBA rates on average. To view rates, go to Low-Price FBA.

size tier, go to Product size tiers.

[2] Starting April 17, 2026, a 3.5% fuel and logistics-related surcharge will be applied to fulfillment fees across Fulfillment by Amazon (FBA) in the US.

Extra-Large (up to 150 lb) exceeding 96 inches for longest side or 130 inches for length plus girth will be considered Overmax products and will incur a fee in addition to FBA fulfillment fees. For details on surcharge, go to Overmax handling fee.

Fulfillment fees for dangerous goods

FBA has separate fulfillment fees for dangerous goods (also known as hazardous materials or hazmat) that require special handling and storage. For more information, go to FBA Dangerous Goods program and Dangerous goods identification guide.

Frequently asked questions

Will the 2026 peak fulfillment fees apply to products ordered before October 15, 2026?

FBA fulfillment fees are calculated and charged when shipments leave fulfillment centers. If a product is ordered before October 15, 2026, but is shipped on or after that date, the peak fulfillment fees indicated to start on October 15, 2026 will apply.

What fulfillment fee rates apply to an item priced at exactly $10 or $50?

Items priced at $10 and $50 will be eligible for $10-$50 rates. Items priced below $10 will be eligible for <$10 rates, and items priced above $50 will be eligible for >$50 rates.

Where can I preview non-peak and peak fulfillment fee?

You can preview the non-peak and peak fulfillment fee rates in the Revenue Calculator. To access the tool, go to the Revenue Calculator. Additionally, you can explore the Profit analytics tool that allows you to analyze fees, costs, and profitability for the products in your Amazon catalog.

How is dimensional weight calculated?

Dimensional weight is equal to the unit volume (length x width x height) divided by 139. For small bulky, large bulky and extra-large items, we assume a minimum width and height of 2 inches. We'll use dimensional weight for fees when it is larger than the unit weight for all large standard, small bulky, large bulky, and extra-large (except 150+ lb) units. Small standard and extra-large 150+ lb units will use unit weight for fees.

How do I determine what product size tier my product belongs to?

Use the size tiers table to determine your product's size tier.

Why are over $50 fulfillment fees different from $10-50 and <$10 rates?

These rates enable us to invest in service improvements for products priced above $50 by improving your returns experience, reducing missing inventory, and processing faster removals.
